PREFACE

Periodical publications, as every research worker knows, are among the most elusive of all forms of printed matter. Even those that were once in everybody's hands are apt, with the passage of years, to become almost as hard to find as the limited productions of the most exclusive private press. It is the aim of the present catalogue not merely to show the wealth and variety of material that has been and is still being published in this form but to direct the enquirer to where it can be found. In spite of the fact that it is limited to the holdings of British libraries it can claim to be fuller than any list of the kind that has so far been published. It is an achievement of which British librarianship can justly be proud.

The Editor has himself recorded the Council's grateful acknowledgments to the Rockefeller Foundation, to the Trustees and Staff of the British Museum, to Aslib and to the contributing libraries. As Chairman of the Council of BUCOP I should like to pay my personal tribute to Mr Stewart and to his assistants Miss Muriel Hammond and Dr Erwin Saenger for the determination with which they have laboured at their very exacting task and to congratulate them on having brought it, in the face of many difficulties and discouragements, to a successful conclusion.

C. B. OLDMAN,

Chairman of the Council of the British Union-Catalogue of Periodicals

BRITISH UNION-CATALOGUE OF PERIODICALS, A-C.. 1

INTRODUCTION

The British Union-Catalogue of Periodicals is a record of the periodicals of the world from the seventeenth century to the present day (in whatever language and on whatever subject) represented permanently in British libraries. Its main purpose is to provide information concerning the availability for consultation of any particular periodical.

As it is limited to the periodicals represented in British libraries, it obviously does not purport to be a bibliography of the periodicals of the world, although it is a considerable contribution towards such a work.

The term " periodical " has been interpreted in a liberal sense for the purpose of the Union-Catalogue. It includes (a) all magazines, journals, reviews and the other publications commonly regarded as periodicals by the ordinary reader; (b) all the Acta, Mitteilungen, Proceedings, Transactions, etc., of academies, universities, societies and institutions of all kinds; (c) periodical reports of all kinds of organizations which embody the results of research into any subject; (d) year-books and other annual publications; (e) miscellaneous publications, including series, issued by universities, societies and similar institutions.

Certain types of periodicals are excluded. These are (a) newspapers first published after 1799, with some exceptions for decidedly out-of-the-way items; (b) the variant issues of periodicals published centrally and issued with various imprints and other minor differences; (c) periodicals not printed from type, unless they are of more than ephemeral interest; (d) annual and other reports of a purely administrative nature; (e) publishers' series; (f) local and territorial directories; local guides and holiday handbooks, time-tables, etc.; statutory company reports, financial statements and the like.

Periodicals of which no holdings have been reported are listed only if they are needed to complete the history of amalgamations and similar changes affecting other periodicals listed in the Union-Catalogue.

The government and local-government publications of all countries have presented a problem of considerable difficulty, owing to the immense mass of material and the circumstance that so much of it consists of purely administrative documents. The same general principle of selection has been exercised in the inclusion of such publications, except that more latitude has been given to the inclusion of foreign material known to be sparsely represented in the British Isles.

The important libraries of all kinds in the British Isles were requested to co-operate in the compilation of the Catalogue by providing lists of their permanent holdings of periodicals, and the response has been satisfactory in view of the unavoidable difficulties of the post-war years. The majority of the libraries complied most willingly with this request; but others, owing to shortage of staff, war-time destruction and disorganization, or enforced limitations on the use of their stocks of periodicals, were unable to help in this way. For the most important of these latter libraries, arrangements were made for the work to be done by bibliographers employed by us; but obviously there were limits to this kind of activity and expenditure.

In spite of the unfortunate but unavoidable absence of some libraries from our list, it can reasonably be claimed that adequate representation has been given to all kinds of libraries, from the small but highly specialized collection to the vast resources of the British Museum Library.

For the great majority of the libraries included, the detailed information regarding their holdings has been drawn from the lists—some of them representing a great expenditure of time and effort—supplied by the libraries themselves. For the remainder, the information has been drawn from the material supplied by our own workers in the field and other sources.

It should be noted that the Union-Catalogue does not pretend to be a complete catalogue of the periodicals in any particular library. Some libraries are represented very completely, while others (including those entering the project too late for more extended treatment) are represented by a selection from their holdings, or by a few special items. There are various reasons for this. First, it was considered unnecessary to load the entries of commonly-held periodicals with records of fragmentary sets. (In the case of a rare periodical, however, all reported holdings, fragmentary or otherwise, have been included.) Again, in the case of a highly-specialized library, attention has been directed towards including the holdings of its special material rather than of the general material it may also happen to possess in common with many other libraries. Another reason has been that even in so comprehensively planned a work as this, the factors of time and finance have imposed the necessity for selection.

Another factor which has been taken into account as fully as possible is the geographical distribution of the libraries and their holdings represented in the Union-Catalogue. As a result, it is hoped that workers, wherever they are situated, may find much of their desired material within comparatively easy reach. This facility is still of value, in spite of the existence of the well-organized systems for inter-library lending, and the increasing provision for the supply and use of photographic copies of distant and otherwise inaccessible items.

Every effort has been made to give the particulars of holdings accurately and clearly. In this we have been mostly dependent on the information supplied by the co-operating libraries; and it must be remembered that from time to time holdings, although reported as permanent, are dispersed. For this reason it may be advisable, before making a personal visit to any library, to make preliminary enquiries as to the continued existence of the desired material.

The British Union-Catalogue of Periodicals includes particulars of over 140,000 titles contained in about 440 libraries. Its compilation would have been an impossible task without the active co-operation of librarians and their staffs throughout the country. That such a project has been brought to a conclusion, in spite of difficult times and many frustrations, entitles it to rank as one of the most significant results of co-operative effort in the library field.

A work such as this, depending as it does on the two fluctuating factors of periodical publication and library resources, cannot be regarded as final. It does, however, in spite of all its inevitable shortcomings, provide a key to vast storehouses of information, interest and the materials of research.

HISTORICAL NOTE

The British Union-Catalogue of Periodicals owes its inception to the initiative and energy of Mr Theodore Besterman. In a paper contributed to the 17th Aslib Conference in 1942 and printed in its *Report of Proceedings, he argued the case for a really comprehensive union catalogue of the periodicals held in British libraries to replace the various sectional and small regional ones which then, as now, existed.

A number of important bodies expressed their interest in the project; and when the Rockefeller Foundation agreed to make a generous grant through Aslib for the purpose, the British Union-Catalogue of Periodicals came formally into existence early in 1944.

A Council, to which Aslib delegated the responsibility for all technical aspects of the project, was appointed at the beginning of 1944, and consisted of representatives of Aslib, the Bibliographical Society, the British Museum, the Joint Standing Committee on Library Co-operation (of the University libraries), the Library Association, the National Central Library, the Rockefeller Foundation, the Royal Society and the Science Library.

The late Luxmoore Newcombe was the first Chairman of the Council, and held this office until July, 1947. Mr R. H. Hill succeeded him and held the office until November 1949. Since that date the Chairman has been Mr C. B. Oldman.

The Trustees of the British Museum have from the commencement taken a lively interest in the undertaking, and have made a most valuable contribution towards its success by providing the necessary accommodation and many facilities.

* Afterwards revised and published as Aslib offprint No. 10, 1943.

Mr Theodore Besterman was appointed Editor and Executive Officer, and held that office until his resignation in 1947. He was succeeded by Dr A. Loewenberg, who carried on the work until his most untimely death at the end of 1949. The present Editor took office early in 1950.

Some account of the progress of the work, and of the difficulties encountered, will be of interest.

As originally planned, it was intended that the work should be based on the preliminary compilation of as large a list of periodicals as could be obtained from such sources as the British Museum catalogue, the World list of scientific periodicals and the Union catalogue of periodicals in university libraries. This basic list was then to be printed and circulated to all co-operating libraries for use as a check-list, on which each library could note its holdings. Finally, the returned check-lists would be collated and edited into a completed union catalogue.

This in effect was the plan first put into operation, and the compilation of the huge basic list was pressed on vigorously. However, by the time this list was sufficiently advanced to enable the question of printing to be considered, the cost of printing had risen to such an extent as to make the proposal impossible with the financial resources that were available.

The Council was thus faced with a difficult position. Owing to its size and costliness, a printed check-list on which libraries could note their holdings, had reluctantly to be abandoned. After much consideration, it was decided to put into operation the alternative plan of asking each co-operating library to compile a list of its own holdings of periodicals for incorporation in the union catalogue. This decision, forced upon the Council by economic pressure, has had the effect of increasing very greatly the time and labour needed to incorporate the library holdings in the final work. On the other hand, this method of asking libraries to report individually instead of conforming to a circulated check-list has had some valuable benefits. Of these the chief has been the securing of the particulars and holdings of many thousands of items that would never have been included in any normal check-list. Many of these periodical holdings are unique, and represent a hitherto generally unknown body of research material of great value.

Attention may be drawn to one effect resulting from the use of these contributed lists. In spite of careful definition, libraries have varied considerably in the material they have reported as " periodicals," with the consequence that certain items now appear with solitary or few holdings attached although other libraries most probably possess them. It has obviously been impossible to enter into the complicated correspondence that would have been necessary to provide the particulars of more wide-spread holdings in such cases.

Another difficulty that faced the Council was that during the progress of the work it became more and more obvious that the net spread by the Catalogue was both too extensive and of too fine a mesh. The amount of material drawn in—and what was more serious, still to be drawn in—was so immense that eventual publication, or even reasonable completion in manuscript, was improbable in view of the time and resources available. The original scheme brought in, amongst many other things, such publications as the annual reports of every kind of public or private organization in every part of the world; practically the whole of the government and local government publications of all countries; local directories, guides, time-tables, etc.; and " series " of all kinds.

Admittedly there is much in such material that has value; and admittedly also, the perfect record should include everything. But the factors of time and money alone were sufficient to make it obvious that, to enable the Catalogue to arrive at reasonable completion, some narrower limits must be imposed on the types of material to be included.

Reluctantly, therefore, the files were examined carefully, and a great mass of entries transferred to a reserve file. These transferred entries are mainly for such material as purely administrative reports, the non-periodical and business publications of governments, guide-books, local directories, minor annuals, and publishers' series. These reserve entries are preserved in manuscript for permanent reference at the National Central Library, Malet Place, London, W.C.1.

It is hoped that the final selection of the material published in the main Catalogue has been made with due regard to the needs of readers and research workers.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The Council desires first to place on record its great appreciation of the generous action of the Trustees of the Rockefeller Foundation in making a grant of £19,000 for the purposes of the British Union-Catalogue of Periodicals.

It is not too much to say that but for this internationally-minded and munificent action of the Trustees—especially at a time when the world was still at war, with all the attendant dislocations and burdens—such a project could not have been realized, possibly for many years.

Tribute, too, must be paid to the officers of the Foundation for their helpful interest throughout and their sympathetic understanding of the problems that emerged from time to time.

The thanks of the Council are also due to the Trustees of the British Museum who have taken a lively interest in the project since its inception. By placing the necessary accommodation at the disposal of the editorial staff, and by throwing open the full resources of the British Museum Library, the Trustees have made a contribution towards the progress and completion of the Union-Catalogue that would be difficult to value too highly. From the bibliographical point of view the fact that the editorial staff has had access to the files of the periodicals contained in our country's greatest library has been of the utmost assistance.

Grateful appreciation must also be given to the staff of the British Museum Library, whose members have at all times been ready with kindly assistance. Where so many are involved it would be invidious to particularize; but one special form of direct assistance, namely the revision of entries in many foreign languages, must have mention. For this we are indebted to Mr G. J. R. Arnold, Mr R. F. L. Bancroft, Mr Peter Brown, Mr R. Fulford, Mr J. C. W. Horne, Mr D. Rhodes, Miss A. Simoni and Mr H. Whitehead.

Mr H. M. Cashmore undertook, voluntarily, the onerous task of reading the entire Catalogue in proof, and to him the Council is indebted for thus placing at its disposal his great bibliographical knowledge.

Thanks, too, must be given to the many librarians who have co-operated by compiling special lists of periodicals for our use. These lists have formed the main source of the information we have been able to include about holdings, and to a large extent the usefulness of our work depends on them. In many cases these lists have included thousands of items; and they all represent an extensive and valued contribution in time, energy and co-operative good will.

The Council of Aslib has taken a continuous interest in our progress, and much valued assistance has been given by its Directors, Miss E. M. R. Ditmas and her successor Mr Leslie Wilson. Our thanks must also be given to Aslib for the manner in which it has acted as secretariat throughout the whole of the work.

ARRANGEMENT AND USE

METHOD OF ENTRY

The Catalogue is arranged in alphabetical order of titles.

All periodicals having specific individual titles, whether issued independently or by organizations, are entered under the first word, other than an article, of their names. A periodical issued by any kind of organization is entered under the name of the organization if (a) this name forms a direct or indirect part of the main title, or (b) the title is not specific in itself.

Annals of botany. 1-50, ns 1- . Oxford. 1887-1936, 1937- .

Apollo. A journal of the arts. 1- . Jan. 1925- .

Arbitrator, The. Organ of the Workmen's peace association. 1885-89.

Arboricultural Society of Ireland. Transactions. 1. Dublin. 1831.

Association of American geographers. Annals. 1- . Albany, N.Y. 1911- .

For facility of use it is important to note that in the case of the publications of societies, academies, organizations and institutions in general, such words as "Acta," "Bulletin," "Journal," "Mitteilungen," "Proceedings," "Reports," "Transactions," etc., which are in common use, are not regarded as specific individual titles. In all such cases, entry is made under the name of the issuing organization, where full particulars will be found.

Academy of medicine, Toronto.
— Bulletin. 1- . 1927- .
— Transactions. [Unnumbered], ns. 1-3. 1857-1904, 1919-22.

American gladiolus society. Official bulletin. 1-4^{11}. Goshen, Ind. April 1924-Nov. 1927. then The Gladiolus review. 4^{12}-13^{2}. Dec. 1927-Jan. 1936, March-Aug. 1937.

(With a reference from Gladiolus review.)

American society of clinical laboratory technicians ⟨Nov. 1935- of medical technologists⟩. Bulletin. 1. Detroit. Nov. 1934-Nov. 1935. then American journal of medical technology. 2- . 1936- .

(With a reference from American journal of medical technology.)

As in the examples quoted above, it frequently occurs that a publication of an institution or society may commence as (e.g.) "Journal," and change subsequently to "Proceedings" or "Transactions," or some distinctive title, often with the volume-numbering running throughout, or with the introduction of new series. By the grouping together of publications of a society or institution, both ease of reference and the orderly presentation of library holdings are facilitated.

When, however, a society or institution issues a publication which has a distinctive title of its own from the beginning, entry is made directly under the name of the publication, and a reference to the title is given from the name of the society, etc.

Agricultural progress. The journal of the Agricultural education association. 1- . 1924-40, 1943- .

(With a reference from the Agricultural education association.)

All periodicals are entered under their earliest-known names, followed by particulars of all changes of name in their chronological sequence. References are given from all later names to the original name.

Accountants' students' journal, The. 1-3^{36}. 1 May 1883-1 April 1886. then The Accountants' journal. 4^{37}-53^{636}. 1 May 1886-1 April 1936. then The Accountant student and accountants' journal. ns. 1-4^{48}. May 1936-April 1940. then The Student. A magazine for accountancy, secretarial and banking students. 5^{49}-6^{72}. May 1940-April 1942.

(With references to Accountants' students' journal from Accountants' journal, Accountant student and accountants' journal, and Student.)

Archives wallonnes de stomatologie. 1. Liége. 1946. then with Annales belges de stomatologie as Archives de stomatologie. 2- . 1947- .

(With reference to Archives wallonnes de stomatologie from Archives de stomatologie.)

Similarly all academies, societies, universities and other organizations are entered under their original names, with particulars of alternative names and all changes, amalgamations, incorporations, etc., so far as these are known. References from all these variants to the original names are given:

> Académie ⟨r.⟩ de médecine de Belgique ⟨K. Academie van geneeskunde van België; K. Belgische academie van geneeskunde⟩.

with references:

> Academie van geneeskunde van België, K.=Académie r. de médecine de Belgique.
> Belgische academie van geneeskunde, K.=Académie r. de médecine de Belgique.

Certain institutions or organizations, such as botanical gardens, colleges, hospitals, museums, observatories and zoological gardens, which are independent and do not have distinctive names, are entered under the names of the places in which they are situated.

The names of countries, states and towns when used as headings are entered under their current English forms. In imprints, however, they are given as they appear in the periodical.

Government departments and official institutions in general are entered under the names of countries or localities. In some cases where a government department or institution has a distinctive name (e.g. British Museum and National Physical Laboratory), entries are made directly under these names with references from the country, etc.

The place of publication is not given when it can be clearly inferred, and when it is London, Paris and Berlin in the case of English, French and German periodicals respectively.

REFERENCES

(a) References are made from all alternative, subsequent and subsidiary titles of a periodical to the title (in heavy type) under which full particulars are to be found:

> Adult education, 1934- =Journal of adult education.

(b) Similar references are made from alternative or subsequent names of institutions, societies, universities and other organizations:

> Academia ludoviciana=Academia gissena.
> Acadian entomological society=Entomological society of Nova Scotia.

(c) References are also made, whenever it is appropriate, from the names of subordinate bodies, such as special committees, departments, etc., to the names of their parent bodies:

> Animal products research foundation. University of Adelaide.
> Association d'hydrologie scientifique. Union géodésique et géophysique internationale.

(d) Under the names of institutions, societies, universities, etc., will be found the titles of all their publications. If any of these publications have distinctive titles, their full particulars will be found under those titles, and reference to their place in the Union-Catalogue is indicated by heavy type as follows:

— Archaeologia Americana.
— Proceedings.
— Report.
— Transactions and collections = Archaeologia Americana.

The entry in heavy type indicates the item that must be looked for under its own name in the general alphabet.

(e) General references in the following, or similar, terms:

See also under the names of institutions, societies, universities and other issuing bodies.

are made under certain titles where otherwise many (in some cases, thousands) of individual references of doubtful value would appear. These titles include, inter alia, the following:

Abhandlungen
Acta
Anales
Annales
Annals
Bericht
Boletín
Bulletin
Circular
Jahrbuch
Journal
Memoirs
Mitteilungen
Proceedings
Publications
Report
Transactions
Travaux
Trudui
Vestnik

In cases where the name of the issuing body has any element of doubt, the references supplied under (b) and (c) above should remove any difficulty.

DATES

Dates covered by a periodical are given before the place and/or date of publication when known. Dates of publication are given after the place of publication. When no date is shown in a periodical, an editorial estimate is given within square brackets. The dates of old English periodicals are expressed in new style.

NUMBERING OF VOLUMES, SERIES, ETC.

When the volumes of a periodical are numbered in series as well as consecutively, preference is given to the whole numbers and the series numbering is shown thus: 1-39 (12-21 = ns 1-10; 22-39 = 3s 1-18). When the volumes are numbered only in series, the numbers of the volumes in each series are set out. In the particulars of holdings and in other editorial references series-numbers are represented by lower-case roman figures, thus: ii = 2s; iii = 3s.

Subsidiary numbering is indicated by superior figures, thus: $1\text{-}6^{12}$ = vol. 1, No. 1 to vol. 6, No. 12.

ALPHABETICAL ORDER

In determining the alphabetical order of the entries, the following departures from a strict alphabetization have been made:

(a) Articles are printed but ignored, and initial articles are transposed. All conjunctions, prepositions and other minor connecting words are printed but ignored unless used initially:

Annales du magnétisme animal.
Annales de médecine.
Annales du midi.
Annales des mines de Belgique.
Annales musicologiques.
Annales de Normandie.
Annales d'oculistique.
Annales de la religion.
Annales romantiques, Les.

The arrangement is by the words printed in heavy type. This has been done to facilitate reference, and to avoid the uncertainties caused by such connecting words as de, de la, des, du, or for, of, etc., the observance of which would make much difference in the position of the titles in a sequence.

Portions of a title following the word " or " (or its equivalent) are ignored in the alphabetical arrangement.

(b) Titles beginning with numbers, e.g.,

8 en opbouw.
17 de dezembro, O.
XVIIIe siècle galant & littéraire, Le.
20th century.
20ste eeuw, De.

are placed, in numerical order, at the end of the Union-Catalogue after the alphabetical sequence.

(c) Periodicals having the same main title are arranged chronologically:

Antiquarian, The. 1832.
Antiquarian, The. 1^{1-4}. May-June 1871.
Antiquarian, The. Columbus, Ohio. 1897.
Antiquarian. $1\text{-}17^{5}$. New York. Aug. 1923-Nov. 1931.

(d) Honorific adjectives in the names of societies, etc. are abbreviated to their initials and ignored in the alphabetical arrangement, unless (i) they are unusual, in which case they are not abbreviated; or (ii) they form an integral part of the names, in which case they are neither abbreviated nor ignored:

Academia española, Madrid, R.
Academia electoralis scientiarum.
Astronomical society of London ⟨,R.⟩.
Akademie der Wissenschaften in Wien, K.
Irish academy, R.
Royal Society.

(e) Certain words which are used in titles sometimes in the singular and sometimes in the plural are arranged in a single alphabetical sequence under an appropriate heading. Examples of such words are:

Abstract
Bericht
Bulletin
Collection
Compte rendu
Jahresbericht
Memoria
Monograph
Observation
Rapport
Record
Report
Result
Statistique

(f) Under certain comprehensive headings (e.g. Countries, Universities, Societies, etc.), general publications precede those issued by particular departments, sections, etc.

(g) Variant spellings of a word are amalgamated in a single sequence. This has been done not only to facilitate reference, but because the variations often occur in the successive titles of the same periodical. References are given from the forms not adopted for the inclusive sequence.

Examples of such amalgamations are Almanac and Almanack; the Italian Bollettino and Bullettino; Labor and Labour.

(h) Archaic spelling is reproduced but ignored in alphabetical arrangement. Thus " Centinel " is arranged with Sentinel, " Teutsch " with Deutsch, извѣстія with известия, etc. In all such cases, references are made from the archaic form of the word to the form under which it has been arranged.

In accordance with modern German orthography, words commencing with or containing ca, ce, ci, co, cri, cu and th are arranged with those commencing with or containing ka, ze, zi, ko, kri, ku and t. The German ae, oe and ue are arranged as ä, ö, and ü.

The Scandinavian å is alphabetized as aa; and the Icelandic ð and þ are arranged as dh and th.

References are given at the appropriate places in the main alphabet from the forms not adopted for arrangement.

TRANSLITERATION

Titles in Greek and in those Slavonic languages using the Cyrillic alphabet have been entered in Greek and Cyrillic characters respectively, followed by transliterations. As none of the codes of transliteration has been accepted as wholly satisfactory, we have adopted in general the methods practised by the British Museum. The soft sign of the Slavonic languages (ь) has, however, not been represented in our transliterations as it does not affect the alphabetical order. Also the Bulgarian ъ has been transliterated into ŭ, as was the practice until recently at the British Museum.

As in the General Catalogue of the British Museum, entries in Greek appear without accents.

All Cyrillic and Greek entries are arranged in the alphabetical order of their transliterations.

[Transliteration Tables follow overleaf.]

HOLDINGS

The holdings of the co-operating libraries are recorded for each periodical, the libraries being represented by symbols. (The list of libraries included, with their individual symbols, appears on page xxi–xxxi.) In these symbols, the first part, consisting of a single capital letter or of a capital letter followed by one in lower case, represents the name of the town; the rest of the symbol represents the library. (In a few cases, changes of location since the symbols were allocated have caused exceptions to this plan.)

A detailed account of each library's holdings is given, so far as it is possible to do so with reasonable brevity. The following conventions have been used:

A = library A contains a complete set (or a complete set to date).
B 3-46 = library B contains vols. 3-46.
C 3-6, 8-40 = library C contains vols. 3-6 and 8-40.
D (w 17) = library D contains a set wanting only vol. 17.
E 6-8*, 14-18 = library E contains vols. 6-8 and 14-18 of which vols. 6-8 are imperfect.
F 1-22 (5, 14*) = library F contains a set of vols. 1-22 of which 5 and 14 are imperfect.
G iii 8-vi 6 = library G contains a set running from vol. 8 of the third series to vol. 6 of the sixth series.
H (7*) = library H contains a complete set, of which vol. 7 only is imperfect.

Library holdings are specified by volume numbers unless dates are clearly more useful. In some cases, however, the information supplied by co-operating libraries has consisted of dates only; and, unless the dates were capable of obvious interpretation by volume numbers, it has been considered desirable to indicate such holdings by dates. In order to avoid confusion, wherever some holdings are shown by dates amongst others shown by volume numbers, the dates are printed in italics.

The following examples illustrate the above points:

> Advocate, The. The Austin car owners' journal. ⟨Austin motor company.⟩ 1-16^{8}. Birmingham. Dec. 1911-Aug. 1927. then The Austin magazine and advocate. ns 1- . London. Oct. 1927- . BAU ii 15- ; BC ii 20-21*, 22- ; BP; L i 13^{3}- ; O ii 1-9^{8}.

This shows that:

BAU	has a set from vol. 15 of the new (2nd) series.
BC	has vols. 20-21 imperfect of the 2nd series, and vol. 22 onwards.
BP	has a complete set.
L	has a set from vol. 13 part 3 of the 1st series.
O	has vols. 1 to 9 part 8 of the second series.

> Aluminium world ⟨and brass and bronze industries; and brass and copper industries⟩, The. 1-8. New York. Oct. 1894-Dec. 1902. then with The Brass founder and finisher and The Electroplaters' review b Metal industry. 1-38^{5}. June 1903-May 1940. then Metal finishing 38^{6}- . June 1940- . BP b 3-7, 34- ; BT b 4-7; BU b 1^{7}-7^{7}; LBA b 39- (w 45); LP*; SP b 24-44.
> — [Supplement.] Organic finishing. 1- . Oct. 1939- . BP 1939-44; LMB 12^{3}- .

This shows that:

BP	has b (i.e. Metal industry), vols. 3-7, and vol. 34 onwards.
BT	has b vols. 4-7.
BU	has b vol. 1 part 7 to vol. 7 part 7.
LBA	has b vol. 39 onwards (but wanting vol. 45).
LP	has a complete set (a and b) but for some imperfections.
SP	has b vols. 24-44.
BP	has 1939-44 of the Supplement.
LMB	has vol. 12 part 3 onwards of the Supplement.

The letters [a understood] b, c, etc. are used to denote changes of title when combined with new volume-numbering.

LIBRARY SYMBOLS

After the location symbols and name of each Library will be found the following signs denoting the facilities available for the use of its periodicals:

1. Available on loan:
   - (a) Through the national inter-library lending system for use only within the borrowing library.
   - (b) Through the national inter-library lending system for home use by individuals.
   - (c) By direct loan:
     - (1) To Libraries.
     - (2) To individuals.
2. Available for reference:
   - (a) To callers in general.
   - (b) To individuals suitably introduced.
   - (c) To members only.
3. Material can be copied for enquirers by means of:
   - (a) Microfilm.
   - (b) Other photographic copying apparatus.

It must be understood that in all cases where libraries express willingness to lend material, either directly or through one of the inter-library lending schemes, the privilege is at the discretion of the librarians. Rare material, or material difficult to replace, is usually held for reference use within the owning library.
